What is Financial Aid?

Financial aid is money to help pay for college or trade school.

Aid can come from:

- colleges and universities
- the state where you live
- the U.S. federal government
- a nonprofit or private organization

Types of Aid

Merit-based

Awarded to students who demonstrate a high level of achievement in:

- academics
- athletics
- arts
- leadership

Family financial information is not taken into consideration.

Need-based

Awarded to students based on their demonstrated financial need.

Financial need is determined based on student and parent financial information from the FAFSA and CSS Profile.

How to Apply for Merit-based Aid

The Merit-based application process varies by college or university:

- Automatic
- Separate Application
- Both

How to Apply for Need-based Aid

The Need-based application process required for all schools:

- FAFSA: Free Application for Federal Student Aid, seniors complete after 10/1 each year

Some schools also require:

Expected Family Contribution (EFC)

The amount your family will be expected to contribute to your college costs.

- Dollar amount of your contribution
- Per Student/Per Year

An important footnote is that with the passing of the FAFSA Simplification Act in December 2020, Congress voted to significantly overhaul federal student aid, which includes changes to streamline the FAFSA and replace the EFC with the Student Aid Index or SAI. While the updates are being phased in and won't be finalized until the 2024-2025 award year, it's important for you to be aware of these changes now.
